

PRESS RELEASE

DINNER WITH ROSE PRINCE AT BLUEPRINT CAFE

Come and enjoy a rare opportunity to taste Rose Prince's cooking on Wednesday 11 June 2008 to celebrate the publication of Rose's new tome, The New English Table. Rose is an acclaimed author who regularly contributes to the Daily Telegraph and other national papers and will be joining Blueprint Café's Head Chef, Jeremy Lee. Together they will be cooking a four course dinner, taking inspiration from Rose's new book.

In The New English Table, Rose explores easy and affordable good food. She unlocks a larder of new and unfamiliar English ingredients from cobnuts to red Duke of York potatoes. She shows how eating local can at the same time be good for the environment and explains how and where to shop, identifying which foods are right for everyday meals, and which for the occasional feast. Rose covers how to make the most of costly ingredients – traditional breeds, organic produce and handmade foods – recycling leftovers for yet more delicious meals.

The evening will take place at the Blueprint Café offering breathtaking views of the Thames and Tower Bridge. After dinner, guests will have the opportunity to ask Rose and Jeremy questions and purchase signed copies of her book. Tickets for the evening cost £45, which includes four courses, each matched to a glass of wine plus coffee. The evening will begin at 7:45pm with dinner served at 8:15pm.
