The 'Library Selection'

As a student in the hotel and restaurant industry, I was once told that the sommelier is not unlike an experienced librarian. The librarian knows every single book in his collection, and helps bewildered readers and book enthusiasts alike find the exact type of book they are looking for according to their specific tastes. He also manages to keep in touch with the ever changing tastes and needs of his customers and recommends different readings to them in accordance to the times. Sometimes we know the books are there somewhere, but it's the help of the librarian that opens our eyes to the wonderful treasures around us and introduces us to books we may have never read before...

At Orrery, the 'Library Selection' changes with the seasons. Given the current economic blues, this season I have picked a special value selection from our cellars for everyone to enjoy.
